CITY OFFICIAL PAPER

D. E. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

IN DAYS ALMOST FORGOTTEN

The death of George A. Knight, the well known lawyer, brilliant orator and prominent member of the Republican party, who passed away in San Francisco Tuesday last, recalls the celebrated murder trial of Doctor Llewellyn Powell who murdered Ralph Smith, editor of the Times-Gazette in 1886. Knight defended Powell in four trials. The Smith murder was one of the big sensations of that period. All the lawyers who took part in the celebrated case have since become famous and many of them wealthy.

A widow named Willis rented a dwelling from Doctor Stambaugh, after whom Stambaugh street is named. The water at the house was turned off by Doctor Powell, who was a brother-in-law of Doctor Stambaugh and who was managing his property in Redwood City. Mrs. Willis felt aggrieved at the treatment of Powell and complained to Ralph Smith who at once espoused her cause and published a statement of the affair in the Times-Gazette. Much bitterness was engendered and the two men became deadly enemies. They both met one bleak November afternoon at the Pioneer Drug Store, an altercation took place. Powell wiped out his revolver and shot Smith who lingered two days when he died.

At the trial, however, sentiment was about evenly divided. Ralph Smith was a Native Son and that organization aided the prosecution of Powell. George A. Knight, then a budding lawyer, fresh from the mountains of Eureka, threw his whole soul into the case for the defense. Associated with him was George C. Ross and Eugene Duprey. Mr. Knight afterwards won a national reputation as an orator. He died a millionaire. Eugene D. Duprey died some years ago after winning a fortune and a big reputation as an orator. Mr. Ross is the only lawyer still living who aided in the defense of Powell and like the other two attorneys is wealthy. Judge Buck was the district attorney at that time and in the prosecution of the case was aided by Samuel M. Shortridge, then a young man fresh from college and budding forth as a diciple of Blackstone. This was his first important case. Since that time Mr. Shortridge has gained the distinction of being one of the foremost orators of the country and he may be a candidate for the United States Senate at the November election. Judge Buck was elevated to the superior bench a few years afterwards and has ably and honorably filled that position for the past quarter of a century. Thus have all the actors of the Powell trial become known to fame and all of them have enjoyed Fortune's Smile.

The first trial ended in a disagreement as did the second one. The third trial was held in San Francisco in Judge Hunt's court. Powell was found guilty and sentenced to serve ten years in San Quentin. The case was appealed to the supreme court and after two years was sent back for retrial on the ground that the defendant did not acquiesce in the change of venue. An act was passed by the Legislature to fit the case but the supreme court declared it unconstitutional. The fourth trial of the now famous case was tried before Judge Hunt in Redwood City and resulted in an acquittal. Powell left town shortly after and died some years ago in a Soldier's Home.

After the death of Smith his wife and James V. Swift, now postmaster of Redwood City, edited the Times-Gazette for some years when Charles N. Kirkbride, the well known attorney of San Mateo, became the editor of the paper.

Mrs. Smith went to San Francisco with her young son and she was appointed a notary public and still holds the position. She did not remarry. Her son has long since grown to man's estate.

Ralph Smith was a brilliant man, a man of fine literary attainments. He conceived the idea of setting aside the Big Basin as a National Park and through his foresight and efforts the people are now enjoying the beauties of that famous redwood park. He was the pioneer to point out the value of the park and the necessity of securing it before all the tall timber was cut down and manufactured into lumber. The Times-Gazette of those days contains column after column of strong articles from the pen of Smith urging action on the matter. About twenty years after his suggestions were taken up and the land purchased as a public park by the government. Thus has his achievements lived after him. Smith was a warm friend of the late Senator Byrnes and he chose him to act as the editor and manager of the Times-Gazette, then owned by the senator.

THE GREAT AMERICAN PEOPLE

There is one dominant fact which the politicians of all parties seem to overlook. That is the inherent strength, the immeasurable power of our own country.

First it area, equal to half of Europe. (2) what it is capable of producing; (3) its population and the character of its population; (4) its freedom from debt, and finally what it might be in half a year were its forces called out. This last influences the outside world in its thought of us more than any other one thing. The fact that it could in six months call ten million of young men to the colors and have them efficient soldiers without for a moment stopping or crippling one of its great industries. Is there wonder ment?

Then there is a red school house on every country road corner, and go in almost any of the humble homes on the mighty area and you will find some one who knows all that is going on at home or abroad, and who will give you an intelligent opinion on any subject you may spring.

This fact ought to be a notice to all men who aspire to high places, never to risk talking down to the people, never to make a bluff to them lest they be called, never once to presume on the supposed ignorance of the masses, for the deep exhaust of the perfecting press is sounding every where and with the dawn has for the people, all ready, the history of the previous day from which the people keep in touch with the events of yesterday brought to them by the telegraph and the press this morning.

Behind the people is the ever constant thought that if things do not come out just right, they will all be in a measure to blame, for have they not each one his part to do and there must be no relapse of vigilance no neglect of duty.

For the men who on their merits command the respect and confidence of such people just praise is due, but for such men the knolwedge of that fact should make them grateful and at the same time humble, and they of all men should fight shy of any playing to the galleries from everything that comes of personal pride or presumption.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

In many of its planks the Republican platform is superb.

Its exordium, speaking for unity, for devotion to the constitution and laws, for American rights and for justice in our foreign relations, is in strict accordance with the traditions of the party since its birth.

Its statement of our feelings as a nation toward Mexico, and its criticism of the policy that has been pursued toward that country by the present administration, is a fair statement of facts, and so is the attitude of our people toward the Monroe Doctrine, and toward Latin America.

The Philippine question, too, is handled just right.

On the questions of prohibition, the tariff and merchant marine—viatl questions now—the platform is perfect.

The general prosperity of the country during the coming few years, while the awful foreign war continues to rage and when the exhaustion is on after its close, will depend more how those questions are settled than upon all other questions combined.

The transportation problem is, in our judgment, not so happily handled We believe general laws could be passed which could place sufficient restrictions upon transportation, without the present system which has the effect of keeping great transportation companies held up to view as sinister agencies, intent upon spoliation and as real enemies of the men from whom they obtain their revenues.

The platform is modest in length, throws no sops to catch votes, it is dignified and has a candid ring most commendable from beginning to end.

Man can build the house and roof it in, a resistance against the storms and elements; but the man with all his genius and artisan science cannot make the home; that ever has and ever will be the task of woman. It is she alone that can bring to it warmth and beauty. Here she reigns supreme.

We are tempted to speak a word to merchants. We are thankful that you have placed your ad in our columns. Our many wideawake readers will see it and they will trade at home, they must, of course, let the public know what goods and what inducements they offer. The great merchants of our larger cities are constantly advertising at an enormous expense, but it pays them; and it was by shrewd advertising that thew became so successful. They cannot afford to stop, or else they would. Our merchants can't afford to stop advertising in their local papers. Advertising pays, even if you have no competition.

Young man, there is one thing you cannot do. You cannot make a success in life unless you work. Older men than you have tried it and failed. You cannot loaf around the street corner, smoke, tell stories and sponge on someone else without making a failure of life. You must learn a trade or get into some honest business. If you don't you will become a chronic loafer and there is no place in the world for loafers. The ripe fruit is at the top of the tree and you must climb if you get it or some smart man will pluck it from you. Do something no matter how small or how low the wages, it will be a starter. Help yourself and others will help you. There is no royal road to success; will, grit and endurance are the qualities that lead to it.

* The farming business is now coming to a point where it is generally recognized as the most prosperous business, auguring the best future and the brightest prospects. That being so, there will be no trouble about keeping the boy on the farm for he will be keen to see that it is the best place to make money, gain the respect of his fellowmen and obtain that standing amongst men, which is the ambition of every right-minded boy. It is to gain these things that he has heretofore gone to the city; it is to gain these things that he will hereafter stay on the farm and that will send the youths of the cities to join him. All he wants to know is as to what pays best in the sum of human happiness and comfort and success. It is now being demonstrated that in all these things the farm augurs the best opportunities

THE HOSPITAL

There are a large number of persons literally afraid of a hospital and regard it a disgrace to be sent to one. Yet in fact the hospital is one of the most helpful and needed institutions of civilization, and the natural place of resort in a severe illness, or in case an opperation is to be performed. A hospital is equipped so that care and skilled attention can be given far better than in one's own home. Trained nurses and experienced physicians know better what we need in our sickness and pain than the loved ones of our own family. The old, unreasonable fear of the hospital is a relic of the days when limbs were sawed off without anesthetics amid unpleasant surroundings. All that is changed and the hospital should be welcomed as an institution of mercy, a home of rest and cure.

COUNTS CALIFORNIA'S GOLD

A count of the gold in the state treasury was made yesterday by the state board of control. The amounts on hand were: gold, $4,509,090; silver, $4,232.90; nickels, $74.99; currency, $2,590; gold certificates, $1,300,000. There is on deposit in the banks of the state subject to call, $9,243,665. State Treasurer Friend W. Richardson says the finances of the state are in good condition and that the state is making deposits in banks as fast as applications are received. Next month franchise tax payments will begin to come in.

It's worry, not work, which shortens life.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE ON PETITION FOR SALE OF REAL ESTATE

In the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of San Mateo.

In the matter of the estate of Clarence D. Hayward, deceased.—No. 2015.

Charles W. Merrill, the administrator of the estate of Clarence D. Hayward, deceased, having presented to this Court and filed herein his verified petition in due form of law, praying for an order of sale of all the real property and all the personal property of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth; and it appearing to this Court by said petition that it would be for the advantage and benefit and best interests of the estate and those interested therein to sell the whole of the real estate and personal property to pay the debts outstanding against said deceased, and the debts, expenses and charges of administration, if a satisfactory price can be obtained:

It is therefore hereby ordered by this Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before said Court on the 3rd day of August, 1916, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the courtroom of said court in said County of San Mateo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to said administrator to sell the whole of the real estate of said deceased, description of which is set forth in the petition on file herein and hereby referred to, and the whole of the personal estate of said deceased, a description of which is set forth in the inventory on file herein and hereby referred to, at either private or public sale, as said administrator shall judge to be most beneficial for the estate, and that a copy of this order be published once a week for four successive weeks in a weekly newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said County of San Mateo.

Dated, this 29th day of June, 1916.

GEO. H. BUCK,
Judge of the Superior Court.

MOSES AND SANITATION.

Ancient Laws as Effective as Modern Rules of Hygiene.

There has been gathered a collection of facts to prove that the sanitary laws of Moses were not only on a line with the modern rules of hygiene, but in some cases in advance of them.

The Jew, thousands of years before Christ, settling in a semitropical country, was forbidden to eat pork or shellfish, and milk was designated as a source of contagion. In the Talmud a method of slaughtering animals was prescribed which is acknowledged today in our markets as the most sanitary.

Five thousand years before Koch gave to the world the results of his researches in bacteriology the Mosaic law pointed out the danger to man from tuberculosis in cattle, but did not forbid infected poultry as food. It was only a few years ago that German specialists discovered that fowl tuberculosis was harmless to man.

The Mosaic law also enforced the isolation of patients with contagious diseases and the burial of the dead outside all cities. These hints the Gentile world did not fully accept until a century or two ago.

The wise lawgiver prescribed not only fasting at certain periods of the year, but the removal of all families in summer out to camps, where for a time they could live close to nature. Many of the laws of Moses were prescriptions intended for the health of both mind and body.—Boston Transcript.

NO EXCUSE FOR "AIN'T."

It Is About the Worst Contraction in the English Language.

"Ain't" is an improper abbreviation of "are not." British writers spell it "a'n't," which properly indicates its derivation. Americans make it an inclusive offense, using it for "am not" and "is not," as well as for "are not." It is unquestionably the worst instance of slovenliness in the common speech of today.

Yet it is by no means of universal or even common use. It will slip occasionally from refined lips, always with a jar to the enunciator, as well as to the hearer. But the habitual user of "ain'ts" is careless of refinement. He may be an excellent citizen who never beats his wife nor kicks the cat. But there is likely to be something slipshod about him somewhere. For "ain't" is needless, as well as cacophonous. It fills no void and supplies no need.

English observers complain superciliously of the laxness of American speech. American observers who have listened to the marvels of Lancashire, Yorkshire, Devonshire and other shire dialects are inclined to resent any assumption of British superiority. But it is none the less desirable to eliminate our own linguistic sins, and of these "ain't" is the most deplorable.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Awkward.

A visitor to a hospital for soldiers was surprised to hear one of the patients being addressed by the nurses by his Christian name, it being customary to address patients by their surnames only. Upon inquiry as to why this distinction was accorded to the particular soldier referred to the reply received was:

"Well, we can't very well call him by his surname."

"But why not?" queried the somewhat astonished visitor.

"You see," was the overwhelming answer, "his surname is Love, and it's rather awkward."—London Tit-Bits.

Why Mosquitoes Like Blood.

The fact that mosquitoes so continually harass rich blooded creatures is due to the fact that they cannot lay eggs without the albuminous food which is thus obtained. In tropical countries the greatest enemy of the maliaria bearing mosquito is a species of bat which is protected from the insect's bite by its strangely shaped hairs.

The bat is very swift of flight, and the mosquitoes, especially those which have already made a supper of blood, are their ideal food.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Japanese Needlewomen.

The daughters of the land of flowers sometimes curiously reverse European methods. They needle their thread instead of threading their needles, and instead of running their needle through the cloth they hold it still and run the cloth upon it. An English lady long resident in Tokyo once wrote to a friend that the impulse of her Japanese maids is always to sew on cuff frills and other similar things topsy turvy and inside out.

Two Important Matters.

"Now, Katie, do you know enough to keep your mouth shut?" asked the fashionable woman of the girl she was about to engage.

"Well, ma'am, I know enough to all right, but the question is, Do I get enough wages to encourage me to?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Selfishness.

The selfish man suffers more from his selfishness than he from whom that selfishness withholds some important benefit.—Emerson.

Regrets.

For all we know, the gaudy butterfly may have moments in which it regrets the fine times it had as a caterpillar.—Puck.

Wisdom is ofttimes nearer when we stoop than when we soar.—Wordsworth.

FUNNY MONEY IN CHINA.

Getting or Making Change Is a Sore Trial to a Foreigner.

A dollar of our money in Chinese cash weighs eighteen pounds.

In Chentefu, which is a small village where white people seldom go, I was going along with my guide when I saw a small peddler beside the street with some fine Peking pears. I bought six of them for 2½ cents and in payment gave the street peddler a twenty cent piece. He turned it over and over and tested it with his thumb nail, which was surely made for the purpose. The peddler gave back the coin and said that he would not take it. The guide asked him why, and he explained that he had never seen any such money and that it might be bad. So I had to dig up some coppers.

In all his life the peddler had never seen a piece of silver money. There are thousands and thousands of people in China whose financial dealings never amount to enough to have it put into silver, who are born, grow old and pass to their reward without ever having seen a piece of silver.

All China is suspicious about money. Every time you put down a dime or a piece of silver the other person tests it before he will take it, ringing it on the counter or on the pavement. You can't give a merchant the right amount of change and walk off. He won't let you leave until he has tested every piece, and he always gives back one or two pieces. He wouldn't think very much of himself as a merchant if he didn't refuse some of your money.

If you buy something in one part of a store, get your change and walk to another counter and buy something else and give the change that has just been given you the second clerk on general principles will refuse part of it.

Before you buy anything your money has to have the once over. Sometimes it is maddening to have to wait while your money is tested. One day I rushed up to catch a train with just a minute to spare. One of my dollars was bad, and before change could be made the train had rumbled off into the silent night without me. But in a few minutes the silence was broken—broken beyond repair—by an impulsive young man 6,000 miles from home who put his whole soul into one mighty Missouri effort.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

There is a story of a man who was tied up in a dark room and informed that he was to be put to death by bleeding. His tormentors made a small incision in his neck and arranged for a stream of lukewarm water to trickle down his back for fifteen minutes. At the end of fifteen minutes the man died of exhaustion. He had not lost a drop of blood, but he thought he had. Such is the power of suggestion.—London Saturday Review.

Disraeli's Humor.

I was introduced by particular request to Mrs. Wyndham Lewis, a pretty little woman, a flirt and a rattle—indeed, gifted with a volubility I should think unequaled and of which I can convey no idea. She told me she liked "silent, melancholy men." I answered that I had no doubt of it.—Letter of Benjamin Disraeli to His Sister.

Different Effects.

"The same thing will make entirely different impressions on different readers," remarked the man who writes.

"Quite so," replied the lawyer. "Letters which bring tears to a girl's eyes frequently make a jury laugh."—Washington Star.

ONCE A SOVEREIGN STATE.

Now Noli Is Simply a Fishing Village With a Past.

One of the oddest and quaintest little independent states that ever existed in Europe—the tiny republic of Noli, founded before Rome and maintaining its liberty for many centuries until Napoleon swept away its privileges—is today merely a fishing village near Genoa, but it is full of reminders of its former greatness and affords a wonderful glimpse of mediaeval times. Destroyed by the Carthaginians in 217 B. C., and who knows how often by subsequent marauders, there seemed no limit to her powers of recovery.

This quaint little fishing village maintained itself as a sovereign state for centuries, took a prominent part in the quarrels of Guelphs and Ghibellines, sent doughty warriors to the Crusades, commanded the interest of emperors and popes and only succumbed at last to the armies of Napoleon. Dante clambered hither over terrible hills on hands and knees and revenged himself by consigning Noli to his "Purgatory."

Everybody is rich in this poor man's paradise, says the Wide World Magazine. During the anchovy months it is not rare for the 120 boats to earn $4,000 in a night, or $75,000 in a season. Through fish alone a man earns far more than a clerk, besides which he has no "appearances" to keep up. Under these happy conditions he soon acquires land and houses, which afford a steady revenue while he sleeps or fishes. The earth here has only to be scratched in order to bring forth wealth, so rich is the soil and so abundant the water.

PERILOUS ATHLETICS.

Sport That Wrecks the Heart an Evil to Be Avoided.

"No one will gainsay the value and pleasure of outdoor exercise graduated to suit the needs of every individual throughout life," says the Journal of the American Medical Association, "but the species of overdoing called for in the intense competition of the great contests of our schools and colleges can no longer be defended by platitudes regarding the alleged psychologic value of its competitive features. The time has come when statistics regarding latent athletic injuries must be reckoned with and the lives of our youths safeguarded by making a distinction between sane sport and insane participation in the intolerable strain of competitive games of the extreme type."

The same paper says the authorities of colleges need to be reminded in an emphatic way, in the words of Dr. R. N. Wilson of Philadelphia, that "no form of athletic event is sane that demands of the participants the semiconscious state of heart exhaustion at its conclusion."

And it denounces the daredevil forms of "sport" that depend for their thrill on nearest possible approach to death by the actors in them, such, for example, as "looping the loop" in an aeroplane or driving a motorcar a hundred miles an hour. Such, it says, are not sport, but degeneracy.

The Cart Before the Horse.

Mr. Harbord had a jewel of a servant called Johanna. One day he found his bedroom a foot deep in old and muddy tea leaves. Johanna explained, "The missus said I made such a dust when I swept the floor and that I must put tea leaves all over the carpet, so I emptied the old barrel standing by the kitchen door, and I put them on the floor like missus said, master, after I had swept the carpet."—London Telegraph.

Attacked By Lacey With a Shot Gun Who Inflicts Serious Wound

Armand V. Kieffer, owner of a wayside resort at La Honda, who was shot in the side by James D. Lacey, a woodchopper at La Honda Wednesday evening, is resting nicely and will recover. Lacey abused Kieffer, saying that he owed him money and wanted it. At a distance of forty feet Lacey fired at Kieffer with his shotgun inflicting a serious wound in his side. Owing to his weakened condition, Dr. Ross thought at first his patient would have some difficulty in pulling through. Yesterday Kieffer had improved to such an extent that Doctor Ross declared him entirely out of danger.

Lacey was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Charles Cavalli and brought to the county jail. Nearly twenty years ago Lacey shot and killed an Indian named Pete at Portola, after a bitter contest Lacey was acquitted. AVIATION SCHOOL BACKED BY LOCAL CAPITAL

Note to Finance Aeroplane School and Factory Signed by Local People

The committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce some time ago to look into the proposition of Aviator Christofferson reported on Thursday evening that it was worthy of consideration. QUICKLY EASES SORE THROATS

Simply Apply a Little MacLaren's Mustard Cerate

Unlike the fussy, mussy mustard plaster, MacLaren's Mustard Cerate neither burns nor stings. It has all the virtues of the mustard plaster and none of its faults. Acts quickly yet gently in a soothing, cooling way and is a "bully" good remedy for reaching the raw spot in a sore throat.

No one knows what a bad cold may lead to. Coughs and colds often lead to Pneumonia and Consumption, and the old proverb of "a stitch in time saves nine" applies very aptly to Coughs and Colds.

You cannot make any mistake if you use MacLaren's Mustard Cerate for Stiff Neck, Sore Throat, Pleurisy, Colds, and Congestion, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Headache, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Sore Muscles, Lame Back, Chilblains, Sprains and all kinds of Aches and Pains, and often wards off Pneumonia.
